Animals vs Humans

Humans are the most unique animals on the planet. Our ability to effectively communicate, opposable thumbs, and other traits. Humans have the upper hand over any other species on earth. Animals are very intelligent like humans and there can be no doubt about that. Because few animals have some of the same traits as humans, making them truly unique among their own. However, primates and humans live in social groups and share some characteristics in their social relationships and social behavior with humans. This can be seen since they have conflicts like us and tend to raise their children. Humans are truly amazing animals like primates, both have abilities to continue expand our span of thought show that we are capable of many more great things. In conclusion humans and animals have a few similarities and differences that make us unique.
